, is one of Europe's largest banks. The owners believe that a well-lit, well-designed workspace makes for a more efficient and profitable workforce. Its corporate headquarters and philosophy are typical of most large Danish companies. Photo by David McLain , is 30 members strong and partially funded by the municipality. Approximately 96% of Danes belong to a vast array of associations that have served to institutionalize social networking and reinforce a sense of community and belonging. Photo by David McLain called "Movies on the Beach" is designed to promote love. In Singapore, the government plays a heavy-handed role in social policy, promoting everything from love to cleanliness in a seemingly endless array of social education campaigns. Review "...a book about the happiest regions in the world. [Buettner] also recommends "land-mining your home with photos and memorabilia, so you're constantly reminded of your history." Adorning a hallway or a highly trafficked room with sentimental objects is a good way to start."

-Real Simple

"Buettner travels to places...to interview "thrivers," who report more life enjoyment than most people. He suggests ways that the reader can emulate these cheery folks."

-Atlanta Journal Constitution

"For his 2008 best-seller, The Blue Zones , Dan Buettner searched the world for the truth about longevity. In his new book, Thrive, out Oct. 19, he tackles the topic of happiness. What are the happiest spots on Earth—and what secrets can we glean from them?" -Parade --This text refers to an out of print or unavailable edition of this title.
